Robert B. Semple Jr. ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Sept. 27 (AP)—A President of the United States and an emperor of Japan met last night for the first time in history. The meeting took place in a converted hangar which served as a makeshift embassy midway between Washington and Tokyo.

World Traveler—Emperor Hirohito greeted by Danish King Frederik on arrival in Copenhagen last night.

White House had imported from Washington the Army Herald Trumpeters and the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps. The President and Mrs. Nixon, who had come by plane from Portland, Ore., yesterday and attended a reception given by former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel, whom the President dismissed last year, only hours before the ceremony at Elmendorf, arrived at the hangar at 9:55 p.m. Mr. Nixon took his place at the head of the receiving line, which included Secretary of State William P. Rogers, national security advisor Henry Kissinger and other officials.

As Protests Break Out in 4 Cities

Thieu Vows Social and Economic Revolution

Peter A. Jay Sept. 27 (WP)—Nguyen Van Thieu, last scheduled television speech before Sunday, said tonight that national year between Vietnam and the United States. Earlier today, demonstrations broke out in major cities. Mr. Thieu said, "I will be virtually over Vietnam. I will be able to attend to other matters. I have promised an economic and social revolution." Mr. Thieu reviewed the contents of his first four office and said that if to office by the voters unopposed presidential election he will "do my best to build peace, freedom and happiness with you" in his second term. He did not specifically ask for support in the election, or address himself to the question of how opposition votes should be cast. Last week, speaking as the president rather than as a candidate, he suggested that voters mutilate their ballots if they want to show their opposition.

Police Arrest Youth With Bomb At Copenhagen

By John M. Lee COPENHAGEN, Sept. 27 (NYT)—After a lapse of 50 years, Emperor Hirohito of Japan returned to Europe today for a nostalgic but whirlwind tour of seven countries in 16 days. Although the trip seemed much like a sentimental journey, two Japanese youths protested the visit as a revival of Japanese militarism by showering the emperor's motorcade with leaflets in Danish and Japanese as he left Copenhagen airport. The youths were arrested. Another youth was seized as he unpacked a haton and yellow crash helmet from a knapsack.

[Late tonight, Reuters reported that still another youth, a Japanese, carrying a bomb in a knapsack was arrested at the airport minutes before Emperor Hirohito arrived. Police said the bag also contained multi-pointed nails designed to puncture car tires, bags of red paint and a bag of gasoline.] The 70-year-old Hirohito is the first reigning Japanese emperor to set foot on European soil.

The chartered DC-8 of Japan Air Lines landed just after 6:15 p.m., ending the 8-1/2 hour flight from Anchorage, Alaska. The emperor, looking frail, blinked into the floodlights and waved as he left the aircraft followed by Empress Nagako. King Frederik IX of Denmark and Queen Ingrid were waiting at the bottom of the ramp. About three steps from the bottom, the emperor, who is short, leaned forward eagerly to shake hands with the towering king, and, for a moment, it looked as if the emperor might fall. But the two men then walked off together, conversing, presumably in English.

The Danish welcome was friendly, if subdued. Small crowds dotted the route and several hundred persons crowded around the entrance of the Royal Hotel and applauded as the imperial couple arrived. The stop in Denmark is regarded, for protocol purposes, as an informal visit, something of a rest stop after the long journey before beginning the rigors of a formal state occasion in Belgium on Wednesday. Thus there were no arrival statements and no guard of honor, and the king and queen left their guests at the airport. As the visit is unofficial, the king had not planned even to go to the airport and had intended to send his 31-year-old daughter, Crown Princess Margrethe, but the king changed his mind after President Nixon flew 5,000 miles to greet the emperor during a refueling stop. The king will be host to the emperor at lunch tomorrow at Fredensborg, his summer palace in the country. On Wednesday, the party will leave for Belgium and will also visit France, Britain, the Netherlands, Switzerland and West Germany.

IMF Head Bids 118 Members Help Erase Deficit of the U.S.

5th Monthly Trade Deficit For America

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Despite President Nixon's import surcharge, the U.S. balance of trade ran in the red for the fifth month in a row last month as Americans imported $258.7 million more in goods than they exported. The deficit was slightly improved from July, when it ran $304 million. But the total deficit for 1971 so far stands at $936.1 million, which compares with a $2.2 billion surplus for the same period a year earlier.

The unfavorable trade figures were among the chief reasons for President Nixon's new economic policy announced Aug. 15. The policy includes a 10 percent added tax on most imports which the administration is using as a bargaining tool to seek a realignment of international currency rates to help correct the trade deficit. The August trade figures had not been expected to show the effects of the surcharge because it was announced in mid-month and did not apply to goods that were in shipment at that time.

Dampening Influence Harold C. Passer, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Affairs, said the West Coast dock strike which began July 1 "continued to exercise a dampening influence on both exports and imports." "There were few signs of diversion of exports to other ports," he said, "but diversion of imports to East Coast and Gulf ports, as well as to overland routes, was clearly evident."

The Commerce Department figures showed exports increased last month for the first time in three months, going up 5.2 percent to a total of $3.68 billion. Imports increased by 3.7 percent to $3.94 billion. Mr. Passer said the increase in exports was supported by a rise in coal shipments from July levels, which were depressed because of the rail strike, by increased exports of automobiles to Canada, as well as aircraft and chemicals. He said import strength was concentrated in consumer goods, gem diamonds and foods. Imports of steel machinery, lumber and iron ore decreased.

U.K. Rejects Soviet Demand

90 Russians Ordered Ousted Apparently Still in Britain

LONDON, Sept. 27 (UPI)—Two jets left for Moscow today apparently with none of the 90 Soviet officials Britain has ordered expelled for spying. But the British government reiterated the expulsion orders still stand. It was London's first official reaction to the Soviet demand that the expulsion order be rescinded or Britain would face retaliation. Last Friday, the 90 were given two weeks to leave the country. The Foreign Office also said 15 others, stationed in Britain but out of the country at the time, would be denied re-entry. One Soviet trade official said his mission will "suffer" from a manpower shortage. Another said the British accusations were "impossible."

The British government, acting on information it said was provided by a Soviet secret police (KGB) agent who defected to Britain, charged the 105 were guilty of various acts of espionage. The Foreign Office yesterday and again today rejected demands by the Soviet government that the orders be rescinded. But departure times for the 90 still in Britain remained undisclosed. A Russian plane landed in London and left again for Moscow today with no sign of them aboard. The Soviet Aeroflot SU-312 en route from New York to Tokyo via London and Moscow, left less than half full, an airport official said. Most of the passengers had boarded in New York. British European Airways said it also had a flight scheduled for Moscow today but that none of the expelled Russians were aboard. Most of the passengers appeared to be British businessmen. Aeroflot's next flight to the Soviet capital was set for tomorrow morning. Political sources said Moscow may delay the departure of the

Brezhnev Met at Airport

Politburo Reportedly Holds Urgent Parley

MOSCOW, Sept. 27 (NYT)—Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist party leader, reportedly held an urgent meeting at Vnukovo Airport today with other members of the party's ruling Politburo immediately upon returning from a visit to the Balkans. The 64-year-old party leader returned to Moscow shortly after the arrival here of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, whose formal dinner with Soviet leaders tonight was postponed, reportedly at Soviet request. There was no immediate indication whether the Politburo meeting at the airport was called to assess Mr. Brezhnev's visit to Yugoslavia and Eastern Europe, or events in China, or to take up such other pressing matters as Moscow's response to Britain's ouster of 105 Soviet representatives as spies. Because of the seriousness of the crisis with Britain, it has, presumably had attention at the highest levels.

When Mr. Brezhnev flew in from Bulgaria at 4:30 p.m., East European newsmen at Vnukovo Airport reported seeing Premier Nikolai V. Fyodorov, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and "virtually all other" members of the 15-man Politburo on hand to meet him. They went into the airport lounge and met for at least 30 minutes and possibly longer, East European sources said. Observers noted that such a procedure was highly unusual and suggested that the Kremlin leaders were dealing with a matter of urgency, evidently having made preparations in advance for an emergency session. Mr. Kosygin was reported by Indian sources to have informed Mrs. Gandhi on her arrival of the Soviet desire to put off the first round of her formal talks with the leadership and a formal state dinner until tomorrow.

Abroad Last Friday Mr. Brezhnev has been abroad since London announced its decision last Friday night to expel 90 Soviet representatives and to bar 15 others from returning. The urgency of the meeting today raised speculation whether he wanted a chance to meet other Soviet leaders before final instructions were sent to New York for Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's scheduled meeting with Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the British foreign secretary. The seven hours time difference between Moscow and New York would have permitted a message to be sent to Mr. Gromyko in time, if that were the topic of the Politburo discussions. Indian sources said that Mrs. Gandhi, tired after her six-hour flight, had lunched on roast beef and

U.S. Reporter's Experience

A Help-Wanted Plea by a U.K. Counterspy

By Clyde H. Farnsworth PARIS, Sept. 27 (NYT)—Foreign newsmen occasionally catch a glimpse of the workings of British counterespionage, especially journalists who have professional and social contacts with Soviet Embassy personnel. A case involving this correspondent suggests how closely the Russians were being kept under surveillance in the mid-1960s. The newsman—an American—was having breakfast in his London flat one damp October morning in 1966 when a strange letter appeared from the War Office. He was requested to make a certain telephone number, ask for a certain extension and call an appointment to see a man who shall be called Eldridge. The correspondent made the appointment for later that morning and was told by the woman at the other end of the line to be sure to bring the letter with him. After parking his car, the journalist walked up the steps of the grimy building in Whitehall and was immediately ushered into the deeper recesses—a restricted area of nondescript offices and tweedy secretaries. A uniformed guard unlocked the door of one nearly bare office at the end of a long corridor, and the newsman was asked to wait inside. Within two minutes, a tall, spare, springy Englishman slipped into the office and, after a cursory handshake, slid into the chair behind the empty desk. A man in his early 40s, square-faced and cold, he identified himself as Eldridge and came immediately to the point. The correspondent, he said, knew a certain Mr. X, a third secretary at the Soviet Embassy. The American indeed knew Mr. X, had lunched on roast beef and

Revaluations, End of Surtax Are Proposed

By Robert Siner WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Against the background of the world monetary crisis and the threat of a trade war, the International Monetary Fund today opened its annual meeting and urged its 118 member nations to "make every effort to cooperate with the United States" in achieving an improvement in America's balance of payments. IMF managing director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, addressing the session, also urged the United States to remove the 10 percent surtax that President Nixon levied on imports on Aug. 15. Mr. Schweitzer called on the members to work together toward currency realignment. West German Economic Affairs Minister Karl Schiller, denying earlier reports that he had privately warned U. S. Treasury Secretary John Connally of possible German retaliation against hard-line American refusal to raise the price of gold, told the delegates: "Perhaps we will not be able to get together this week on a unified plan, but I hope that as a result of our discussion we can express a joint will for solution of the problem." Later Mr. Connally urged the conference, a joint session of the IMF and the World Bank, to "accord flexible, fair treatment to the dollar."

Six Weeks of Crisis

The latest currency crisis came to a head six weeks ago when the United States suspended the convertibility of the dollar into gold, ending the system of international payments that had been in effect for the last 25 years. This had the effect of floating all the world's major currencies against each other and has ended the stability of the fixed exchange rates that had obtained since World War II. In his opening address, Mr. Schweitzer urged swift action to end the present instability. He said that prolongation of the currencies' floating and of the 10 percent surtax could result in "disorder and discrimination" as permanent features of international trade. However, he remarked that the current crisis "affords a unique opportunity to strengthen the performance and structure of the international monetary system." He emphasized the need for long-term reforms and warned that this should not be lost sight of in haste to end the present instability. He called for prompt agreement on a set of priorities and an agenda for dealing with the crisis but emphasized that the first priority should be establishment of new exchange rates and the "abolition of the temporary import surcharge imposed by the United States."

Group of Ten Move

Yesterday, the Group of Ten, comprising the most powerful industrial nations in the IMF, agreed on a three-part agenda to attack just these problems. Since voting power in the IMF is weighed according to the economic strength of the member nations, the Group of Ten has enough voting strength to insure adoption of its proposals. A major obstacle to agreement has been the unwillingness of

Danes Arrest Man, Wife in Kidnap Case

High-Living Pair Enter Guilty Pleas

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 27 (UPI)—A Danish couple, who drew police attention because of the free-wheeling way they spent money, today pleaded guilty in the kidnapping of the manager of Denmark's Tuborg brewery on Aug. 17.

The abduction, which lasted only three and a half hours, netted the kidnapers a ransom equivalent to $240,000, paid by the brewery to save the life of managing director Viggo J. Rasmussen.

Mr. Rasmussen was released without injuries after a kidnapper had threatened him with a gun and an injection needle.

Frank Mouritzen, 45, and his wife, Rita, 34, appeared in a Copenhagen court charged with robbery a few hours after they were arrested this morning while sleeping in a hotel in Hederslev in South Jutland.

After the couple had entered guilty pleas, the judge ordered the rest of the preliminary court hearing closed to press and public because he wanted to discuss the whereabouts of some of the ransom money, court sources said.

The prosecutor said all but $40,000 of the ransom had been recovered.

Police Inspector E.C. Jøvelid said the couple "spent money like grass . . . as if they had lifted it themselves."

Coup Gives Women Majority On the City Council of Oslo

OSLO, Sept. 27 (AP)—By exploiting a little-used voting procedure a women's bloc has elected a 48-member majority to the 85-seat Oslo city council.

This was made known last night after election officials concluded six days of counting the 10,500 lawfully amended ballots from the nationwide municipal elections last Monday.

The Oslo council remains in Socialist control, with 58 Labor and eight Left-Socialist representatives, but the new and powerful women's bloc entered the campaign, trying to ensure more kindergartens and safer traffic in the Norwegian capital.

Under Norwegian law, voters may delete one or more names on the ballot and repeat other names instead, according to an intricate system. This will not affect the political representation of each party, but decide which of the candidates will represent the parties in the council.

Few Use System

Usually, few people use this system, but if it is done systematically, some hundred voters may decide the whole set-up within each party's group.

Before the election on Monday, some neo-feminist groups contacted a ballot-altering expert, editor Per Evøengen of a small countrywide paper, for information on the system. He became known throughout the country four years ago, when he staged a similar coup in his own council.

The airline warns all passengers against acting as couriers for any object, even one supposed to contain medicines urgently needed by a patient in Israel. It also warned them against leaving their hand baggage unattended even for a single moment.

Iran-Turkey Rail Section Inaugurated

CENTO Subsidized $90 Million Link

VAN, Turkey, Sept. 27 (AP)—The shah of Iran and the president of Turkey dedicated today a section of railroad that represents a major step toward a rail link between Europe and the Far East.

In ceremonies in this eastern Turkish town, the two leaders hailed the 84-kilometer construction through an area of rocky mountains, fierce winds, biting cold and snow.

The rail section took seven years to build and makes it possible to travel from London to Tehran. It winds through remote country inhabited mostly by mountain tribesmen from Shiraz and Iran's western rail terminal, to Turkey's easternmost terminal at Tabriz, crossing Lake Van by ferry.

Turkish President Cevdet Sunay met the shah at the Turkish-Iranian border when the shah arrived in his private train.

Continents Are Closer

Mr. Sunay told a crowd, "The continents of Europe and Asia are now brought closer by this link."

The shah thanked Central Treaty Organization members for their financial aid and said the project would be a boon "to regional and international co-operation."

The $90-million project was sponsored by CENTO, a defense grouping in which Turkey, Iran and Pakistan are members with Britain and the United States.

Work is under way, also under CENTO sponsorship, to complete a 500-mile rail link between the present eastern rail terminal in Iran, at Yazd, and the Pakistan border, at Zahedan.

This would make it possible to travel by rail from London to the Burmese border, although the Pakistan-India disputes have blocked existing rail communications across India between East and West Pakistan.

Dr. White Speaks From the Heart—Dr. Paul Dudley White, noted heart specialist, talking to newsmen in Hongkong yesterday after arriving from the Chinese mainland.

Dr. White Says He Did Not See Mao During China Visit

By Tillman Durdin

HONG KONG, Sept. 27 (UPI)—Dr. Paul Dudley White, the American heart specialist, said upon his arrival here today that he had not seen Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist party chairman, during a 13-day stay in the People's Republic of China. His comment was in response to earlier speculation that he had attended Chairman Mao for a heart check-up in Peking.

Dr. White, 85, and another American heart specialist, Dr. Edmund Gray Dimond, arrived here en route home. Dr. Dimond said he also had not seen Mr. Mao.

The two American doctors, accompanied by their wives, were in China as guests of the Chinese Medical Association and reported that they had spent all their time seeing Chinese medical establishments and visiting with Chinese doctors.

"I did not see any high political figure," Dr. White said. "We heard over the BBC the speculation that Mao Tse-tung was ill, and we inquired of Chinese doctors about it but they had no knowledge of it."

Dr. White said he was impressed by what he had seen of medicine in Communist China. "They are doing a magnificent job," he stated.

Observers have been speculating that the cancellation last week of the customary big parade that was to be held in Peking to celebrate Oct. 1 National Day, as well as an earlier three-day stoppage of traffic on airports in China, pointed to some critical development in the People's Republic.

The initial speculation that Mr. Mao might be ill or dead has now been dropped by most circles. However, it continues to be held here that a top Peking military leader continues to be out of the public view. None has been referred to in Peking press and radio reports for two weeks.

Premier Chou En-lai, however, has been in news reports almost daily.

Dmitry A. Zhdanov, 63, Head Of World Anatomists' Group

MOSCOW, Sept. 27 (AP)—Dmitry A. Zhdanov, 63, a leading Soviet anatomist and president of the World Association of Anatomists, has died.

A death notice in Pravda today did not give the cause nor the date of death.

Dr. Zhdanov was a leading researcher in the nervous and lymphatic systems of humans and animals. He reported he was the first to use "the method of injection and roentgenography of the thoracic duct in a living person."

Medical School Graduate

A 1929 graduate of the medical school at Voronezh University, Dr. Zhdanov was a professor and chairman of the department of anatomy at the Sechenov Medical Institute in Moscow. He was also an academician and member of the presidium of the Soviet Academy of Medical Sciences.

In 1946, he was awarded a Stalin Prize, now known as a State Prize, for his scientific work. In 1961 and again in 1965, he received orders of the Red Banner of Labor, another high Soviet award.

Deadly Snakes Made Harmless, Surgeon Says

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 27 (UPI)—Researchers have developed an operation that transforms deadly snakes such as the king cobra and diamondback rattler into harmless reptiles.

The technique has worked on 150 snakes and means 200 keepers can handle poisonous reptiles without fear of a fatal bite, said J.L. Gienn, a serpentologist for the city's zoo.

"We can convert a reptile into a venomoid—a venomous snake that is no longer capable of injecting venom into its victims," he said in a paper presented today to the conference of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums.

Soviet Border Dispute See Coming to a Head in Peking

By John Burns

PEKING, Sept. 27.—Diplomatic sources here believe a development of importance may be near in the long and unproductive border negotiations between the Soviet Union and China.

The sources were unwilling to specify the form that they thought the development would take, but they predicted that it would further increase tensions between the two states.

(With regard to China's mysterious cancellation of its national-day celebrations scheduled for Friday, the recent absence of national leaders from public view and grounding of airplanes, Lee Lescaze of The Washington Post reported from Hong Kong today that a government explanation was imminent.)

(Canton television said it would carry a "special and important" news item tomorrow night about "circumstances of the commemoration" of the Red regime's National Day, the Associated Press reported from Tokyo.)

(Canton radio indicated that the telecast would originate in Peking.)

(A Chinese traveler just returned from Canton to Hong Kong said that the Sunday telecast announcement described the Tuesday telecast as "of great importance to the people" and urged that "all persons should make arrangements to see and hear it.")

The Sino-Soviet negotiations began in Peking in October shortly after the two countries narrowly avoided a full-scale border incident along their 4,500-mile frontier.

Since then both sides admitted making no progress whatsoever talks have continued long breaks.

Leonid F. Dityatsev, negotiator, is known to be in Moscow recently for a vacation, and received new instructions from the government while there.

For now, the sources here say a complete break in the talks is unlikely, but they concede that the result if one side launched a new offensive tied to the talks.

Pain Killer To Rise in As Patients

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—The older a patient likely is to get his pain relief, the more certain it is that he will die, the Journal of Medical Association says.

Authors studied 71 five Veterans Administration hospitals for the amount of morphine patients received for pain relief. Patients received relief with twice the pain reliever between ages 40 and 80.

Researchers found important to adjust a narcotic analgesic to a patient's age and weight, face and operative history served as guidelines for doses.

The authors say change in pain reliever might be a main reason for general physical changes with aging.

The researchers of the increased relief by age-induced alter body's absorption and elimination of the drug.

The paper was by Drs. J. Waldon Belle Forrest Jr., Elliott, Byron W. Brown.

Ex-Nazi Seized By Austrians

VIENNA, Sept. 27 (UPI)—Police arrested today a former Nazi SS officer under suspicion of complicity in the killing of 1.5 million Jews.

The police said they arrested Ernst Lerch, 60, a coffeehouse owner in Elgenfurt, during World War II, a major in the SS. He was chief of staff in the "Reinhard Organization," which was responsible for the final settlement of the Jewish question in occupied Poland.

Jewish sources here said a total of 18 million Jews were killed in three concentration camps under the "Organization Reinhard" jurisdiction.

Italian Town Shaken By 2 Vendetta Blasts

DROSI, Italy, Sept. 27 (AP)—Two dynamite explosions, apparently set off in a vendetta, rocked this Calabria village with the force of an earthquake early this morning. One person was killed and two were injured.

The pre-dawn blasts badly damaged ten buildings. Diego Tavernelli, a 45-year-old cleaner was killed when a wall collapsed. He was not one of the two intended victims of the bombings, according to police. They were Antonio Maissano, 73, and Antonietta Seva, 25. They are the brother and niece of Domenico Maissano, a notorious bandit called the "wild beast of Droli," who was found slain four years ago. The bandit had been accused of committing five murders, including those of several members of one family.

Lansky to Fight Israeli Expulsion

JERUSALEM, Sept. 27 (UPI)—Interior Ministry officials said today that American underworld figure Meyer Lansky does not face immediate expulsion, although his tourist visa expires at midnight.

"We do not have a stop watch in our hands," the officials said. They added that Mr. Lansky would be permitted to stay on pending the outcome of a legal battle he was planning to contest the government refusal to extend his stay in Israel.

Interior Minister Joseph Burg announced the decision on Friday, but gave no reasons for it. Mr. Lansky's attorney, Yoram Alroy, said he was planning to fight the decision.

AD FOR AGENTS

Normally, this is not the way this ad should have been written. It probably should have been big and eye catching with all kinds of short snappy statements about "Mutual Funds", "Top Producers", "Earn a Fortune" etc. . . . You know the type. You have seen them for the past 5 years.

When you get right down to it, they all want you to sell the same product. A product that is unmarketable because the market has grown up and now people want to know what they are getting for their money. And what of those people who already have been burned by losses up to 20% or even worse. Stop of their investments. How anyone yet come up with a program to help them?

Well, we have! And we are going to spend a lot of money telling people about it and we need agents to look after and help these people. Forget the stock option, give them a real chance to be paid with the destruction of confidence in the investment world.

Our requirements are simple. Tell me the client gets the break! Our requirements are simple. Tell me the client gets the break! As you guessed, we are not a fund — not even related to one.

Interested? Then write us a little about yourself and let us decide.

A Mysterious American Institution

By Anthony Lewis

LONDON.—When he set out to reorganize the Supreme Court in 1937, Franklin Roosevelt had just won the most one-sided election victory in modern American history...

But we know what happened. Opinion rallied to the Supreme Court. An otherwise pliant Congress balked at the President's court plan...

Roosevelt suffered a political wound from which he never entirely recovered.

There must have been many factors in the outcome. The plan itself—to add extra judges because the old gentlemen on the court were supposedly overworked—was tricky and unconvincing.

What is it about this strange institution that has kept a hold on popular belief through all the changes in American life?

For appointed judges with life tenure to decide fundamental political questions hardly fits standard democratic theory.

The public must have sensed an ultimate safety in the Supreme Court despite the mistakes and tribulations. A man may resent the judges' protection of some interest group today and still recognize that, another time, the institution could protect his interest from the consequences of majority rule.

The danger has always been that, in relying on judges to save them, Americans would weaken the political process. That was what so concerned Justice Felix Frankfurter.

Now these two great exponents of conflicting judicial philosophies are both gone, and we can see that in a sense history has passed them by.

What aroused Felix Frankfurter's concern originally, and that of so many others, was the invoking of the Constitution to veto social and economic measures. But that day is over.

A Difference

The issues, if just as difficult and as important, are different now. In effect, the court is often asked to open up the political system, not to supplant it.

It really does not help to attack the Supreme Court as undemocratic or romanticist as it is nobler than the political branches.

There is little purpose in such slogans as "strict construction." Black construed the Constitution strictly, as he saw it. Frankfurter, for all his doubts, exercised judicial power when elected state legislators discriminated on grounds of race or a President seized private property without authority.

Then what should be the qualifications of a justice? We do better to put the question another way: What do Americans want of the Supreme Court?

For all its involvement in our system of government, we do not look to it for political questions. Of the court we seek things we might call more elevated: detachment, moral sensitivity, historical understanding, scholarship, humility, and perspective.

Of course, the court won't record this, but some people in and never will see it, is the way thing

Palme and Solzhenitsyn

By Olof Palme

STOCKHOLM.—I was surprised to read the editorial by The New York Times (Sept. 15) concerning the Nobel Prize of [Alexander] Solzhenitsyn.

The Swedish Academy selects the Nobel Prize laureates in literature. The Nobel Foundation presents the prizes. These institutions are completely independent of the Swedish government.

The Swedish government does not deal with the question of fairness or justice in the choice of recipients. This is true of the laureates in physics and chemistry as well as in literature.

In the event the laureate cannot participate in the ceremony in Stockholm, it has happened that the Swedish Embassy, at the request of the foundation, has assisted in delivering the prize.

The Swedish Embassy in Moscow was certainly willing to present the Nobel Prize to Solzhenitsyn. The Swedish Embassy was, however, not prepared to comply with the ceremonial suggested by the representative of Solzhenitsyn's publisher, who wished such forms as would have purportedly represented a political manifestation against the government in the country where the embassy was accredited.

It would seem as if the Times editorial is of the opinion that the Swedish Embassy dealt with this matter in a way which would reflect a submission to a great power.

U.S. Deserters

Sweden has acted as host to a few hundred American deserters. This is true and according to our laws. Sweden has also acted as a host to tens of thousands of political refugees from Eastern Europe.

It is also true that the Swedish government has criticized the war in Vietnam and the American commitment there. The Swedish government has also criticized the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in terms stronger than most other governments. We have clearly voiced our opinions on the position of Jews in the Soviet Union.

These are political decisions.

We have never used embassies as a platform for expressing our opinions in a way that would disturb their normal functions as channels between governments.

I am strongly opposed to attacks against the diplomatic representations of a country or ac-

The Voice of Dixie

"Those Grating U.S. Voices" (Herald, Sept. 28) Thomas Whyte obviously overlooked that golden land of honeyed tones where by comparison even British women would sound strident: The South. If all females talked like Georgians and looked like Mississippians there would be no bachelors.

OLIVER TAYLOR, London.

I was so pleased to read (Herald, Sept. 23) that Mr. Thomas Whyte finds no fault with the voices of the fruit of the womb of American womanhood who, twice in the past 60 years, have been sent across the Atlantic to save the necks from whence those lifting British voices are emitted.

SHEILA H. LA BASH, Schoten, Belgium.

Mr. Whyte will be pleased to know that his proposed revolution has at least some support behind the lines and has had for some time. The quotation from King Lear which appeared with the article hung for years—remember the curling, yellowed tape—25 years ago on our bathroom mirror, where my father had placed it as his campaign poster against the shrillness of the six females in his home.

Mrs. F. D. PETTIT, Wassenaar, Holland.

Tracking Wicker

Mr. Wicker's latest muddled blast at American society ("Across America on Parallel Tracks," Herald, Sept. 22) has got to be a classic, as enigmatic as Gull. At least, there is no longer anything puzzling about the author's cult. Were he merely an iconoclast, as I once suspected, his distasteful but thought-provoking...

sumption of even greater omniscience than he has tried to take credit for in the past, his particular sickness is revealed in parallel tracks: delusions of persecution and chronic suspicion of malevolence.

Publication of his rantings—which are invariably characterized in style by invective and acrimony and in lack of thought by rancor, incredulity and supposition—in a paper meant for an international audience is disgraceful.

Though no doubt intended to bog the question—in characteristically Wicker fashion—the concluding paragraph in this particular piece of tripe, "When will we face the truth?" can only be answered: "When it is presented. And if you don't expect it from Mr. Wicker."

RAYMOND J. ROGERS, Herrliberg, Switzerland.

Cancer Research

Money could be saved on cancer research if the scientists involved reported on the solvent they use when investigating the biological activity of carcinogenic and mutagenic agents.

Dr. KAARE SORENSEN, Charlottentown Denmark.

Victor Louis

In your footnote to his articles (Sept. 9 and 16) you describe Victor Louis as a "controversial Soviet journalist." His articles show him to be simply a hack Soviet propagandist, not averse to any cheap invention in an effort to impress.

He relates that he picked up some hitchhikers on his way from Jerusalem to Tel-Aviv, and when he tried to place his hand on the knee of the smiling girl beside him, he crossed the machine gun that lay in her lap. In telling this, he evidently thought this would make him out quite a roué, but the fact is that girl soldiers in Israel do not carry weapons when hitchhiking, and no one has ever seen a girl soldier doing so. Male soldiers stationed in the administered areas do carry their personal weapons when on their way to and from their bases. Girl soldiers never, in fact, after completing basic training, girls have no use for weapons in the duties assigned to them. Mr. Louis's story is an obvious fabrication.

His comments about the reactions of Russian immigrants are about as true and reliable as his account of this frustrating trip from Jerusalem, and the reasons for his visit altogether. Do he or his supporters think anyone is taken in by them?

Who? Be Water Search for Seeds

By Naomi Barry

WASHINGTON (IHT)—Erna Bennett cannot find the time to search for seeds. To find them and save them she must go through fields and over mountains in forgotten parts of the world.

The key to the search for seeds is genetic erosion, she says. "In five or ten years the genetic erosion will be so great that the job has got to be done now or never. It is a race against time to find the seeds before they are lost forever."

Erna Bennett is a geneticist who has spent her life in the search for seeds. She is a member of the American Genetic Association for her contributions to plant exploration and genetic conservation. Her particular interest is in wheat.

In the first part of her search, she went on a mission to find seeds. She went to Greece, Turkey, Iran and Afghanistan. She found a great variety of wheat. She found wheat that was adapted to the climate, soil and water.

"We can't necessarily date the wheat," she says. "Maybe a couple of hundred years, maybe a millennium. The answer I like to get is: How has it all my life and the life of my father's father and his father's father since the time of the first wheat, the first wheat? Not necessarily true, of course. A bad harvest and maybe someone went to another village for seed."

"I gather the seeds myself because people always try to give me only the best," Miss Bennett continued. "They don't understand I want the whole range from good to bad. People are wonderful."

The only time she has ever been turned back on her travels was when an Afghan farmer feared he might be a tax collector. "He politely escorted me out of his field and entertained me with his best tea and finest bread." Although he did not let her back into his own field, he told her about others in the area.

Miss Bennett's team includes a driver and a local interpreter. "No matter how many languages you speak, you can never get through all the dialects."

A track to maneuver across incredibly rough terrain, she travels in a specially constructed truck with a Volvo engine. Making preparations, can never prepare for actual conditions. Many of the show bridges not yet constructed or bridges long ago washed away. Where the truck cannot go, she has haggled for horses—and often covered a potentially interesting 50 miles, or more.

In the field, her working day begins at 4 a.m. She tries to camp by streams because lighting brings through insects. In the Afghan Desert of Death, temperatures can go above 120 degrees Fahrenheit. Exhausted cultivation is often found at altitudes of 5,500 to 9,000 feet.

"The first couple of weeks are hell," Erna Bennett admitted. "The cause you are soft from city living. The last few weeks are hard too because then I become like a horse turning his nose to home. I once wanted to go home so badly at the end of a trip that we drove from Afghanistan to Rome in seven days."

For her last expedition, a wife of a Rome taxi driver who was supposed to chauffeur her was at the last minute, unable to go. As harvest time was approaching, Miss Bennett simply set off on her own. In Greece, a hitchhiker turned out to be an American forestry graduate. He was headed for Istanbul but agreed to go to Afghanistan, the country which Miss Bennett finds richest in genetic possibilities for wheat.

Like Waves

"It was no Rome taxi driver when we started," she recalled, "but he was pretty good by the time we got back. In certain parts of Afghanistan there are no roads and the mountains are like waves, peak after peak."

"One night we camped in a wild but lovely valley in the Koli-baba. There was a stream of unbelievably cold water, which is probably why it was so musical. We met one lone old man gathering needles from thorny bushes to take to his village for winter fuel. He insisted we change camp to be near his yurt. There he built us a fire he kept going all night. He probably tried up a week's supply of his winter fuel. I told you people are terrific."

Her love for plants is equaled by her love for people. "In Afghanistan, they may be lacking in technical competence but they are as men should be. They have instinctive courtesy and high regard for each other. I would like to see them liberated from their appalling conditions but I hope they can come to modern life without going through the barbaric stage. Anthropologists are looking for the missing link, but I sometimes think the missing link is contemporary man himself."

"It only accidentally became an explorer. It's not been the love of wilderness. I don't like groping up all those rocks. Before I came to FAO, I was a plant breeder in Ireland and Scotland. Like any breeder, I made collections. The old traditional story. But the plants were harder and harder to find. So I had to go further and further."

"I like having my home here in Rome," Miss Bennett said. "Rome is FAO headquarters." "For the first time, all my books are under one roof. I've gathered them all in from Ireland, Greece, Egypt and England."

Food of Italy: Rib-Stickers From Modena

Without pretension, though borlengo wears the crown of a king and crecennina that of a queen; one exists through honesty, the other is a Cinderella with a heart of gold. Creccennina is literally a Cinderella, since it is a heart-shaped cake in the shape of the crescent moon, which is probably the older of the two. They do not ordinarily call it crecennina (though, nor padone, another name for the same thing).

The local word is tigelle, which outrages purists, since it really means not the dish itself, but one of the clay disks between two of the disks, which are laid directly on the red coals. Like borlengo, tigelle are rubbed with fresh bacon, oil and rosemary, and are eaten hot, right off the fire that is cooking them, so that the delicate, nutty flavor derived from the chestnut leaves will not be lost, as it will be if the cake is allowed to cool. This is what you should get wherever the sign tigelle montanare is displayed, but unless you are in the Modena area, you are not likely to find the real thing.

Food of Italy: Rib-Stickers From Modena. This article is adapted from The Food of Italy, which was published in November by the University of California Press. It has been translated by the Book-of-the-Month Club.

Purists would frown on this method of making tigelle. Traditionally, each secco is placed between chestnut leaves and clay disks. Camera di Commercio di Modena.

with them, which was therefore nicknamed burling in the mountaineers' dialect, later ciliated into borlengo.

Borlengo are no jokes for the cooks who have to produce them. They are made in a cartwheel-shaped frying pan, so large and heavy that the chef has to use both hands to lift it from the stove. Like an old-time warrior brandishing a two-handed sword, into this great pan a liquid batter of vigorously kneaded flour, eggs, milk, water and salt is poured, covering its whole surface. When this has been cooked on one side, some supermen succeed, unwieldy though the pan is, in tossing the oversized flapjack into the air to turn it. When both sides are done, one of them is buttered with bacon fat, garlic and rosemary, and dusted with grated cheese. The borlengo is then cut into four pieces and folded into convenient size for eating in the hand. It is filling all by itself, but if you are ravenous, you fold it around a slice of prosciutto or a few strips of fried bacon.

A number of other items combine sound and light in a mildly hermetic spirit.

Rock Is Showing Its Age At 'Eerie' Film Festival

By Henry Pleasant

LONDON, Sept. 21 (IHT)—"Don't Knock the Rock" was the title of a film documentary on Bob Dylan that during a British tour in 1966. The movie is happily disregarded in a two-week festival of "celluloid rock" at the National Film Theater, running through Oct. 6, and including a look back to "Don't Knock the Rock."

There is something eerie about the festival, and it is not hard to identify. They are showing "Rock Around the Clock," "Mystery Train," "The Way It Feels," "Johnny Cash at San Quentin," "The Streets in the Rock" and the Beatles' "Help." Last night we had news from early Elvis Presley films. What is eerie is how quickly so much of all this has aged.

Looking back, nostalgically, not angrily, is fashionable these days. New York has "No, No Nanette" and "Follies." London has "Show Boat" and "The Boy Friend." But with the exception of "The Boy Friend" (1949), these old films from the 1920's, 30's and 40's are barely 10 years old.

One watches "Mystery Train" for example, with some amusement. The festival took place in 1967, just four years ago and yet the stars to whom it brought worldwide recognition and property—Hendrix, Janis Joplin and Otis Redding—are dead. The group have broken up or passed their peak. And the rock festival as an institution, if not yet a thing of the past, is floundering.

To say that it all seems as old-fashioned as "No, No Nanette" would be to overstate the case. But when one notes that "No, No Nanette" dates from 1925 and "Show Boat" from 1927, while

Japan Textile Group Opposes a U.S. Pact

By James P. Sterba TOKYO, Sept. 27 (NYT).—The Japanese textile industry leaders today expressed their opposition to a proposed U.S. pact...

The politically powerful Japan Textile Federation made up manufacturing associations and urged a resolution calling for continuation of the self-imposed restrictions that went into effect July 1.

IMF Asked To Aid U.S.

While no real solutions are expected to come out of the meeting of the IMF, some start of the solution to the crisis is expected.

Mr. Schweitzer recalled that other countries have long been free with their exports to the United States to reduce or eliminate its payments deficit.

There is now general agreement that a substantial adjustment is required to deal with the present payments imbalance in the world.

The surcharge can be justified as a means of improving the U.S. balance of payments only until it is possible to implement it by effective action in the exchange-rate field.

It seemed possible that the other American republics might also attack the U.S. policy—particularly the 10 percent surcharge which Mr. Nixon is using as a bargaining weapon to compel upward revaluation of foreign currencies.

In addition, a Japanese economics professor, in a speech before the Texas businessmen, warned that if the United States doesn't lift the surtax, Japan and other nations will take measures to correct the international market.

Japan and West Germany are the nations with the most to lose through the import surtax and currency revaluation.

Although the solution of these problems is not the responsibility of the World Bank, we are deeply concerned with the manner in which the impact of the external trade of the developing countries, and on the resources flowing to them.

It is clear that we are in for a difficult period of basic adjustments in international monetary and trade arrangements and that the repercussions may continue for some time, he said.

Two leading Norwegian newspapers and the editorial department of the Norwegian Broadcasting Co. said today that reports about "gigantic funds" had been planted. These reports quoted "well-informed sources."

Important Swiss company in the real estate business wishes to contact one or several groups of sales-specialists. Structure and organization of such groups should insure firm engagements on the West-German and other markets.

Europe Sees U.S. Relaxing Gold Stand

'Will Be Bargaining,' German Aide Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP-DJ).—Despite Treasury Secretary John B. Connally's public denials, some European monetary officials said yesterday that the United States had softened its opposition to raising the price of gold and removing soon its 10 percent surcharge on imports.

The U.S. stand appeared less rigid, a high-ranking French official said after a meeting of the Group of Ten.

We expect bargaining to be difficult, but at least we know now that there will be bargaining, commented Wilhelm Hanke, a currency expert from the West German Economics and Finance Ministry.

Edwin Stopper, president of the Swiss National Bank who attended the Group of Ten meeting as an observer, said there was general recognition that a long floating period would make it more difficult to realize currency.

SEC Fixes New Brokers' Scale New Commission-Rate Structure

By Eileen Shanahan WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (NYT).—The Securities and Exchange Commission has approved, with only one small change, the new schedule of sales commissions on stock transactions that the New York Stock Exchange proposed in June.

Under the new schedule, the commissions on very small and very large orders will be lower than now and those in the middle will be higher.

At the same time, the SEC imposed on the exchange and its members a number of new requirements.

Among those were that all brokers who have traditionally handled the accounts of small customers continue to do so, without imposing any limitations on the size or frequency of their customers' orders, and charging only the fixed fee that it set.

Previously, some firms were handling small orders, but only at a higher price than that established in the fee schedule, which set minimum, not maximum commissions.

The new schedule of commissions will not be able to be put into effect until after the end of the wage-price freeze, which will be at midnight, Nov. 13.

Some Changes Rise Comparisons of the new rate schedule with the old one, including the surcharge, show that the commission on a regular 100-share round-lot order would be lower than at present on any stock selling for $30 a share or less, and on those selling for $100 or more.

The one change in the fee schedule suggested by the exchange, will substitute for the old one, plus the 18-month special surcharge which applied to orders of 1,000 shares or less.

DJ Dips 5.84, Volume Down Doubts About Nixon's Policy Depress Big Board Prices

By Vartan G. Vartan NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (NYT).—Press on the New York Stock Exchange eased by uncertainty over the economy and by investor caution, register their sixth loss in a row today.

It was a market devoid of any major news that could be said about today's performance, was that a firming tendency among glamour issues, appeared during the final half hour. "No particular developments," observed analysts.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed 5.84 at 323.47. The biggest drag on the market, as usual, was investment advisor "the uncertainty over the second phase of the President's new economic plan."

Blue Chips Lower Some leading blue chips moved lower in active trading. Union Carbide fell 1 1/2 to 45 3/4, while General Electric fell 1 1/2 to 60.

Computer stocks on the active list included Control Data down 1 1/4 to 50. National Cash Register, down 2 to 26, fell off officials' talk the Wall Street Journal that profits could decline this year and the futurist, the company does not expect a particularly good 1972.

Among the glamourous, Easch & Lomb climbed 2 1/4 to 130 1/4 after selling as low as 125 3/8 and Natoms added 1 1/2 to 83 1/4 after trading below 80 earlier in the session.

Last Week's Gain Erased IBM eased 7 1/2 to 302 7/8. Wall Street Journal, down 1 1/2 to 110 1/2 and ABA Services dropped 2 1/2 to 137, ending last week's gains.

Turnover on the NYSE dipped to 10.22 million shares—a slow pace when compared to the heavy standards early this year—from last Friday's 12.46 million shares.

Stone Container was unchanged at 9 1/4, despite a cut in the quarterly dividend by directors. The company said it wanted "to conserve cash and commit a higher proportion of funds to retained earnings."

Pan American, the volume leader, edged 5 1/2 to 10 1/4. During the session, it passed a yearly low at 10. One of its chief worries is a possible war over transatlantic fares.

American Telephone slipped 1 1/2 to 42 1/4 after touching its previous 1971 low of 42. Standard & Poor's stated: "We have shaved our earnings estimate for 1971 to 44.05 (a share) from 45.15, versus 42.29 in 1970. However, we added that with the common stock now yielding above 8 percent, it is regarded as a suitable holding for income."

The American Stock Exchange index fell 0.7 to 23.25. Petrochem, the most active issue, rose 3 1/2 to 33 1/2. Syntex was unchanged at 69. Imperial Oil fell 1 1/2 to 27 1/2 and Topper rose 1 1/4 to 14 1/2.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (NYT).—New orders for machine tools, an important indicator of the future capital spending plans of manufacturing firms, remained virtually static in August as orders waited for a clarification of the proposed investment tax credit.

Industry sources blamed the tax credit, which was designed to spur new orders for machinery and equipment for the fall. Orders that would normally be placed are being held back, they said, until the tax credit is passed by Congress and its final form is known.

Orders for machine tools in August were $78.9 million, up 1.2 percent from bookings of $78 million in July, according to the National Machine Tool Builders' Association.

For the year to date, orders were up 18.7 percent from 1970, which also was a bad year for the industry. Orders in 1970 were down 46.5 percent from bookings in 1969. Foreign orders for machine tools from U.S. manufacturers were off 20.3 percent in August from July, while domestic orders were up 5 percent.

Enough international business has been lost because buyers and sellers don't know each other.

You get a substantial order Good. But it comes from a firm you hardly know. In a city 5,000 miles away. Not so good. You scurry around for credit information, but the best you can find is superficial and out of date. Now what? Ask American Express International Banking Corporation. We have a worldwide network of 49 branches and offices of subsidiaries in 18 countries. So we can do a lot more than handle the mechanics of a trade. For one thing, we can help you gauge an importer's credit. Even if he's 5,000 miles away—in, let's say, Chittagong, Pakistan. If you banked with us, we could have our people in Chittagong call on your potential customer. Look him over. Make inquiries around town. Then tell you what we find. Our report could help you avoid a costly mistake. Or lead to a profitable sale you might otherwise have passed up. Of course, credit information is not the whole story. We can also tell you about a country's trade regulations. Political and economic conditions. Exchange controls. And local business practices. All of which can be a big help in judging the potential profitability of a customer. When you decide to ship an order, we can advise you on the best method of trade financing. And on the most advantageous plan of currency exchange. Often, we can arrange the financing without recourse to you. Because our worldwide network enables us to check on the importer's credit. We cover major countries in depth. Three offices in India. Four in Pakistan. Six in Italy. Six in Germany. Plus correspondent banks in hundreds of places we haven't got to yet. The whole vast system is at your disposal. Which brings us to our philosophy of international banking. We don't think it's enough just to help you do business. We want to help you do it profitably.

Aggressive bidding took the North-South pair to game on the diagrammed deal.

North opened one heart, perhaps the best choice for those who open four-card major suits.

In four spades, South must assume that the trumps will split 3-2, and must try for three heart tricks.

To make three heart tricks, the percentage play is to lead from the dummy to the jack.

Suppose that West had led a diamond against four spades. South's best plan would have been to allow East to win, and hope that player did not shift to clubs.

At his first opportunity, South would then cash the spade ace, finesse in hearts, and discard both club losers on dummy's heart winners.

But West led the club ten and the percentage play in hearts was no longer available.

South's prospects for ten tricks at this point were poor, but he did not give up.

NORTH (Declarer): ♠ K752, ♥ AK94, ♦ 94, ♣ A52

WEST: ♠ Q109, ♥ Q105, ♦ J52, ♣ 10986

South: ♠ 863, ♥ J2, ♠ A763, ♣ J73

East and West were vulnerable. The bidding: North East South West: 1C Pass 1A Pass 3A Pass 4A Pass. West led the club ten.

BOOKS

THE TENANTS

By Bernard Malamud, Farrar, Straus & Giroux. 23 Part II in a two-part review.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

IN yesterday's column, we met Harry Lesser, a Jewish writer holding out in a condemned tenement until he can finish his book; his landlord, Levenspiel, trying to get him to move; a black writer, Willie Spearman, using an empty apartment in the same building as his "office"; Willie's Jewish girl friend, Irene. Lesser has told Willie that his book suffers from a lack of form and Willie has accused Lesser of trying to "circumvent" him and make him unfaithful to himself.

Obsessed by his writing, Willie neglects Irene, and Lesser approaches and sleeps with her. Now he and Willie are joined in not only their work, but also their woman. Willie Irene finds Lesser more tender than Willie, he is isolated by his self-absorption, just as Willie is by his anger. There's not much to choose between them.

She says of Willie: "The more he writes, the blacker he becomes." For Lesser, it works the other way around: The more he writes, the less Jewish, the more rootless, he becomes. In giving Irene to Lesser, Malamud seems to be suggesting that the Jew reaps the harvest of the black-inspired sexual revolution.

Lesser tells Irene the plot of his book: A man "not yet himself" wants to teach himself to love in a manner befitting an old ideal. He will learn through some miracle of transformation as he writes. Lesser writes his book and his book writes Lesser. Willie's writing is about learning to hate, and we see Jew and black at opposite poles: super ego and id. According to Willie, "The way to black freedom is against the Jews."

Malamud only hints at the origin of this paradox, and the reader has to infer what he can. Apparently, the black sees the Jew—who thinks of himself as the black's best friend—as an infiltrator, someone who tries to soften his heart and subvert his revolution with sympathy.

Willie has not had time to read the book, but he has read the newspaper. This is not the Jew slunkard, the pawnbroker or loan shark; it is far more complicated than that. The Jew might well be hated as an unattainable ideal: rich or cultivated, versed in the arts and sciences, powerful—the pinnacle of American personality. In this perspective, the Wasp, the more natural "enemy," is irrelevant.

When Lesser finally tells Willie about Irene, Willie tries to kill him and is prevented only by the arrival of Levenspiel. (The traditional Jew prevents the liberal Jew from becoming a sacrifice to the black cause.) What is worse, Willie burns (Burn, baby, burn!).

Mr. Broyard is Times book critic.
